The two Senior BCIA Bull Sales have been held at Culpeper and Red House. The Culpeper sale had 58 bulls that averaged $1544 while the Red House Station averaged $1671 on 60 bulls.

Coming up on February 24 is the Red House Junior Bull and Heifer Sale. There will be 33 bulls and about the same number heifers offered. Come out and look these animals over. The heifers have been fed to gain 1.25 and 1.50 pounds a day.

During the last quarter 1978, Appomattox livestock owners sent in 20 forage samples for testing. The 13 corn silage samples averaged 36.6% Dry Matter. This compares with 1372 samples from the state during the same period averaging 39.9% Dry Matter.

Seven samples of hay were analyzed and averaged 57.9% TDN and 10.6% crude protein.

These tests reflect an improved quality of feed to dairy and beef animals. The quality is, of course, reflected to some extent by weather conditions; but more importantly is the management. Management determines the time of harvest, processing of the ensilage and storage of the harvested product.

Home gardeners can influence the quality of their home gardens by using water at the proper time. Trickle or drip irrigation is a new method of getting this job done.

Monday, February 19, Ed Hale, Agricultural Engineer, will be here to discuss this method. The meeting will be held at the District Extension Office, across the street from the courthouse, at 2:30 p.m. and a repeat at 7:30 p.m.

A number of people will be moving towards this new method this year.

Through February 1 there were about 6.5 million pounds of Virginia Fire Cured Tobacco sold. With sales closing out this week, it is doubtful if we'll sell the 7.4 million pound crop that was predicted before the market opened.

One of the concerns in addition to prices being lower than a year ago is the amount of tobacco going under loan. So far 1.4 million pounds or 22.7% compared with 13.9 percent a year earlier have been delivered to the Dark Tobacco Sales Cooperative.

February 26 is the day for one of the two area tobacco production and marketing meetings to be held this winter. This one starts at 4 p.m. at the Appomattox County High School. Dinner is to be served, closing out at 8:30 p.m. All growers are invited.

The soils testing lab is getting about 25 soil samples a day. There is no backlog - they can handle 800-900 samples a day. When the ground thaws - BANG - it will fill up fast and these are the frustrating delays.

It costs 90c to take samples through the lab - it takes your time to collect a good sample.

Let's make all our samples - GOOD SAMPLES - that is, soil samples that are truly representative of the field.

After all, it's your money that is involved.

TECH OFFERING SHORT COURSE FOR BEEF CATTLE FEEDERS

BLACKSBURG - Cattle feeders will learn new techniques in feeding, finishing and marketing at Virginia Tech's Beef Cattle Feeder's Short Course Monday, Feb. 26, at the Donaldson Brown Center for Continuing Education and Wednesday, Feb. 28, at the Ramada Inn, I-95 at Washington St., in Petersburg.

The programs in Blacksburg and Petersburg will be similar and producers are invited to attend the conference most convenient for them, Appomattox County Extension agent, James A. Smith, said.

Beginning at 9 a.m., such topics as how frame size and sex affect results, calculating the break-even point in cattle feeding programs, cattle feeding facilities and hedging cattle feeding programs through futures trading will be addressed.

The Blacksburg meeting will include a tour of a local cattle feeding operation. The Petersburg session will feature a panel of cattle feeders consisting of Robert Alpin, Isle of Wight; C. W. "Bud" Engle, Hanover; and P. H. Fitzgerald, Nottoway.

Tech Extension specialists and faculty members will join Virginia Cooperative Extension agents in conducting the class. Animal science Extension specialists K. C. Williamson and H. John Gerken Jr. will moderate the sessions.

A $12 registration fee will cover lunch and other expenses of the course.

For more information on the short course contact Appomattox Extension agent James A. Smith at P.O. Box 488, Appomattox, Va. 24522 or 352-8244.

Mrs. Zandra Elder provides transportation for pre-school children, ages 2 - 5, who come to the Appomattox Primary School twice weekly.

Transportation - Education Provided For Pre-School Handicapped Children

The Appomattox County Public Schools prepare and implement annually a plan which ensures that all children, ages 2 through 21, who are handicapped and are in need of special education and related services are identified, located and evaluated.

It is important that parents seek assistance from the schools when they believe that their pre-school children may be developmentally delayed. Success in school may be hampered at a later date if certain handicapping conditions do not receive attention at an early age. Obvious handicaps are easily identified and treatment prescribed but such handicaps as delayed speech, which may be caused by a functional disorder or a hearing loss, visual loss, social behavior, poor coordination, or inability to comprehend may indicate to the parent that help is needed.

Nine pre-school schiren are now receiving services twice weekly for speech impairment, physical handicaps and other conditions which indicate that normal development has been delayed. A fulltime program will begin in the 1979-80 session at the Appomattox Primary School.

The school division will set up a schedule of screening activities, which will be announced at a later date, so that parents may bring their children for testing to determine that they are not demonstrating characteristics of severe impairment. Professional personnel from the fields of medicine, education, social service, physical and occupational therapy, and psychology have assisted in establishing normal limits.

Referrals for the pre-school handicapped program may be made by parents, physicians, public health services, regional mental clinics, social services, or anyone who is aware of an unserved handicapped child.

Additional information is available at the Appomattox County School Board Office.

You And Your Credit
HELPFUL SUGGESTIONS
If you are paying $15 a month to six different credit obligations and $90 a month is more than you can handle, it may be wise to take out a consolidation loan. With this you can pay off your current obligations and reduce your monthly payments.

Credit costs money and one low-cost source of credit that many Americans overlook is a credit union. Members get high rates of interest on their savings and pay lower interest on their loans.

* * *

Because credit unions are made up of either your colleagues at work or members of your union or civic group, they know you personally, point out credit experts at the National Association of Federal Credit Unions. That makes credit easier and more pleasant to get.

* * *

Before using your credit, establish priorities. Decide what you want to buy now and what can wait until later when your income may be higher.

If retreads are so safe, why is there so much tread rubber on the highway?
When people see highways littered with thrown rubber, they have a tendency to say, "Another retread."
The fact is that most of this rubber doesn't come from retreads. Surveys have proven that as much as 75% of this rubber comes off new or partially worn new truck tires.
